

MASCULINITY VS. FEMININITY

Ayn Rand once wrote: "For a woman qua woman, the essence of femininity is hero-worship - the desire to look up to man ... Intellectually and morally, i.e., as a human being, she has to be his equal; then the object of her worship is specifically his masculinity, not any human virtue she might lack." What exactly does this mean?

Thu, Nov 4
8:30 PM
UC Class of 87

bjectivist Club
reason@andrew.cmu.edu