

films about PALESTINE

① Occupied Palestine

Thurs, Jan 24, 7pm FILM, FOLLOWED BY DISCUSSION.

Doherty Hall 2210, Carnegie Mellon Campus

Portrays the dominant political and social culture in the Israeli-occupied territories and conveys the essence of the Palestinian struggle in the words and deeds of the protagonists. Produced by David Koff, 1981. Approx 88 minutes.

② People & The Land

Thurs, Jan 31, 7pm FILM, FOLLOWED BY DISCUSSION.

Univ. of Pittsburgh Graduate School of Public Health Auditorium, Rm G-23

... "People and the Land," is about the Palestinian intifada. The film was dangerous to make for Ohio filmmaker Tom Hayes, his Palestinian-American co-producer, Riad Bahhur, their crew, and the dozens of Palestinians who helped them make it. Many of the Palestinians were arrested and beaten, at least 18 were imprisoned without trial for periods of up to a year, and four of them were shot and wounded by Israeli soldiers. Approx 60 minutes.

NEW DATE ③ The Accused

Thurs, Feb 12, 7pm FILM, FOLLOWED BY DISCUSSION.

Porter Hall 100, Carnegie Mellon Campus

Nearly 20 years ago, Ariel Sharon sent Lebanese militiamen into the Palestine refugee camps of Sabra and Shatilla. When they left 36 hours later at least 800 people lay dead after a rampage of murder, torture and rape. The massacre provoked international outrage. In Israel itself, 400,000 people took to the streets in the largest demonstration the country had ever seen. Ariel Sharon was forced to resign as Israel's defense minister. Fergal Keane investigates Sharon's claim that he could not have foreseen the danger of a massacre in the camps and talks to key witnesses and survivors of the massacre. Approx 45 minutes.

Brought to you by the Palestine Solidarity Committee and the Arab Student Organizations of Pitt and CMU. For more information, write ccpj2@hotmail.com.