This exhibit is not merely for thinking of the past, but rather offers a diverse range of architectural exploration against which Lewis and Clark can be placed in history. Not only can you experience the working replica of an explorer’s journey, but you can learn about that voyage while exploring the bowels of an industrial age cargo barge, and reflect on your own place in history through modern age structures, defined by their exquisite material selection.
Transit
- City → Water

Contrast
- City → Water

Program
- City → Activity
  - Waiting → Water

Energy
- Double Envelope to minimize fully conditioned area and to take advantage of climate
- City
  - Indoor Southern Exposure
  - Outdoor Southern Exposure → Water
Samuel Faller