

What is a Just War? Leonard Peikoff @ West Point

AYN RAND lectured to the graduating cadets in 1974 on the topic of “Philosophy, Who Needs It.” Now, 29 years later, the faculty of the Philosophy and English departments of West Point reponded to the demand of their cadets to have Dr. Peikoff speak at this pretigious facility on the topic of “What is A Just War?,” in which Dr. Peikoff presents in compelling terms the rational basis of the morality of self-defense and how the war in Iraq was not only “the wrong war” but also fought by the utterly wrong means (a war based “not on self defense but on love”). Join us in viewing this historic address.

After watching the video, a discussion on the Objectivist position on war will follow.

Thur, Apr 22, 8pm, OSC 201

bjectivist Club

reason@andrew.cmu.edu

<http://www.andrew.cmu.edu/~reason>