

Resources for African American Women's History in Pittsburgh

Each of the pages below has links for encyclopedias, biographical information, databases (for journal, magazine, and newspaper articles), primary sources, and statistics. Which you'd use would depend on your topic, and what you're finding or not finding in the resources you used.

You can get to the History pages by using the links below, or, as we discussed, from the University Libraries' homepage www.library.cmu.edu, under Resources Help, choosing either Humanities or Social Sciences. The databases mentioned in class can also be access from the Libraries' homepage, under Databases by Name <http://www.library.cmu.edu/Search/AZ.html>. Remember, if you're using a database from off campus, you'll need to use the Remote User Access link <http://www.library.cmu.edu/Services/remote.html>
